

Community engagement through applied research

The Centre for Literacy strives to improve practice and inform policy through the generation of knowledge by creating a strong research culture and by developing professional practice. It is committed to the promotion of quality research, and its effective communication, especially in areas related to children's literacy, and to maintaining strong partnerships with schools and the wider educational community.

The Centre continues to be an agent of change on the national, European and international levels. Through strategic partnerships in Malta and abroad, it seeks to influence policy and practice in the field of Literacy Education, and has produced various scientific publications in the field.
