

The NOHA Master's programme in international humanitarian action

The NOHA joint MA in International Humanitarian Action, run by the Department of International Relations \(Faculty of Arts\), is the largest Erasmus Mundus Master's programme of which UM forms part: each NOHA cohort comprises approximately 150 students, of which some 35 study at UM every year. It is among the select few that have achieved third term Erasmus Mundus status.

The NOHA consortium comprises eight delivering universities in Europe, including top-ranked institutions such as Uppsala University, University of Groningen and University College Dublin.
